I then began playing about in the virtual machine and did a few things on the VM itself that told me that I needed to activate the license. I used the FortiClient/ICM to activate the license which (from the manual) told me to simply go to the URL and press "1" to apply the license. Instead of press "1" I pressed "2" as the manual stated to activate the 10 day license. I am still having issues with this in that when I go to the URL in the browser, it does not find anything. The FortiGate Website says that "All FortiGate 8000 Appliances purchased in-store or online are shipped with an evaluation license. To activate the free trial license, go to the customer portal web page and fill the required fields."

when you see the following message during the trial you have to acknowledge the license terms: "you will receive a notification with the option to upgrade your fortianalyzer license by calling the cloud support team at <https://www.fortinet.com/contactus> within 30 days of the date of the notification". this will allow any fortinet customer to set up a fortianalyzer as a vm and process up to 1gb of logs per day. with fortimanager as a vm, you can then manage up to three devices or vdoms. at the same time, you always have the option to upgrade the trial via a license should you have more logs, or want to manage more devices/vdoms. please note that using a licensed version of fortianalyzer does not have any limitations of the free version and you can actually use more than 1gb of logs at a time. the only difference between the free and the licensed versions is that the latter has full features and more online accounts in the settings section, and can help you to upgrade to the licensed version at any time. when you see the following message during the trial you have to acknowledge the license terms: "you will receive a notification with the option to upgrade your fortianalyzer license by calling the cloud support team at <https://www.fortinet.com/contactus> within 30 days of the date of the notification". vm installation is fast, enabling you to start protection instantly. you can verify that the installation is successful by opening the vm settings on the fortigate-vm console and clicking "view settings". in the license section, you can upload your license file (.lic) to the vm. if you do not have a license file, click the "no license" button. to verify the license, simply click the "check my license file" button. 5ec8ef588b
