CAMBRIDGE, Mass. -- Boston University coach Jack Parker will ask Cam Neely to pick his starting goaltender for the first five games of his senior season at the beginning of January. Neely, the second overall pick of the 1997 NHL draft, went 6-1-1 in his first seven starts to help the Terriers to a 7-0-2 start, but he has been solid again the last three games, including Tuesday's 5-4 shootout loss to No. 2 overall pick Seth Knight of Mercyhurst. The week before Neely stopped 28 of 30 shots in a 2-0 win at Providence. Parker said the 23-year-old is being tested, but he didn't want to handicap Neely's development if he's pulled from the net. "I think you can't live in the past and do what you did in the past," Parker said after practice Monday. "You have to get to the future." That future begins with tonight's 4 p.m. showdown with No. 6 overall pick Jacob Markstrom of the University of North Dakota. Markstrom has 13 wins, including last year's Calder Cup with the Milwaukee Admirals. He will be making his first career start at Boston University. Markstrom and Neely were the top goaltenders in Boston University's intrasquad game Tuesday afternoon. Neely was actually a goaltender before he switched to defence in high school, and he liked the challenge of being on the ice with his skates on backwards. Neely, in the NHL with the Carolina Hurricanes since 2006, is 6-2-
