I'm running some computations with a specific matrix having dimensions of: a size (400 x 1001) b size (1001 x 200). I perform a * b Algebraically, my computation turns out to be O(400*1001^2), which is not really that much since I'm multiplying a bunch of arrays containing hundreds of thousands elements. Using the multiply() instead of * is not working for me as the calculation time increases by more than a factor of 100. Does anyone have an idea how I can speed up my computation? A: You can try to use the sparse matrix - both sparsity in a row and column. But even with that, you cannot get the expression to be executed in O(n^2). Just think about your example, if you multiply a sparse matrix a, and then use that as b, then the result is going to be a sparse matrix. That means that for each i in b, you'll have a row(i) in the product. For each i in a, you'll have a column(i) in the product. The multiplication of two sparse matrices is going to require O(m*n) because you're going to have to iterate both matrices and multiply all the nonzeros. So if you have to do 400X1001^2 operations, multiply would be O(400*1001^2). And for 1001X200^2 you'd multiply (with the same reasoning).

Q: No module named error I am using python3 and I want to import a module. I can run the module, but I get the error : No module named 'IdentiCode'. I checked that the module is actually there : ie:/usr/local/lib/python3.5/dist-packages/pycutils/spaces_generator.py Here is my import statement : import pycutils.spaces_generator This is my.bashrc file : if [-f /etc/bash.bashrc]; then Publishing, Inc. Last Update:2012-06-16 Developer URL: About Description Call Of Duty [1]. A modern update to the blockbuster game series.A tactical team shooter. Black Ops 2 is the 12th Call of Duty game overall, and the second released in the Black Ops game series. Black Ops II introduced several multiplayer features, as well as two new game modes, as part of Black Ops IIís multiplayer. Call of Duty Black Ops 2 is developed by the same team that created Call of Duty 4: Modern Warfare and Call of Duty 4: World at War. The single-player campaign was developed by Yager, and is written by several high-profile writers, including two who previously worked on Modern Warfare 2, Big. [2]. A modernization of the series.A tactical team shooter. The game was unveiled during a press conference held at the Activision offices in Santa Monica, California on May 5, 2011. As the sixth game of the Call of Duty series, Black Ops II is the first Call of Duty game that will not be released for the Xbox 360 or PlayStation 3 platforms, marking the first time in the Call of Duty series that the series will be a 'next gen' title.What's My Name (Russell Watson song) "What's My Name" is a song by Australian singer-songwriter Russell Watson, taken from his second studio album, Let It Be (2013). The song was released as a single digitally on 25 March 2012 in Australia and was an airplay success, peaking at number five on the ARIA Singles Chart. Critical reception Paul MacInnes from The Guardian reviewed the song, saying "the distinctive and great Australian voice of Russell Watson shines bright on What's My Name... straddling the line between classic pop and modern smoosh. His songs have a modal harmony and Watson's melancholy 'Morning Glory' trademark has never sounded better
