It should be noted that the input size is in millions and an array of (for example) 2^{32} would be $2^{32}/\text{million}$ (32 million). Would anyone be able to point me in the right direction for a library which can read the given algorithm and compare running time? Any help would be greatly appreciated. A: Try the GNU Compiler Collection (GCC) source code to see what a compiler is doing. The system text of the GCC source code is in plain English and everything is highlighted and commented, so it is a great reference. You can see how GCC compiles or interprets algorithms. If you mean to compare a running time, that implies that your algorithm already performs well in C. If not, you might consider writing an interpreter of the algorithm in C which you can profile to see how fast it is. This invention relates to a system for metering a gas, and more particularly, to an indicator for illustrating the metering capacity of a pressurized gas meter. Gas meters for residential use are usually equipped with a pressure-sensitive indicator. On the gas side of the meter, the indicator is usually a pressure sensitive dial, but on the water side, it is usually a liquid level indicator. The dial indicator is in general an expensive and complex part. It incorporates a pressure sensing element, such as a Bourdon tube, and a rotary pointer is mounted upon the Bourdon c9d1549cdd

Never Ending Mazelt's been a long and difficult journey for I, Mimi, the daughter of the legendary fairy godmother. As a young child, I used to live in the Stumble upon Palace. Despite its terrible reputation, I was always on good terms with the fairies of our land. One day, a mysterious man came knocking at my parents door. But things were not quite as they seemed. The man was not a stranger at all, but instead a prince from a faraway land. Prince Florimond promised my parents that he would grant them any wish they wanted. The one condition was that I would be his daughter. He says... Florimond is a greedy man, but all he cares about is power. When the time comes, he will abandon you. That is the way of the world... He was a bad man, but he has a good heart. So my parents brought me along to the land he promised. Within the palace, Florimond treated me like a princess. From that day on, I was told I was his daughter, and he was the only father I could ever know. I was born to be his good wife. A few days later, I was married to Florimond, who took me to his home country. Even though we were thousands of miles from my home, I decided to stay behind with my new husband. I hated being away from my parents and I missed my friends. When I was alone, I would often cry. But Florimond would always come to me with a song and a smile. He felt bad that I was homesick, so he decided to bring me closer to my mother. A few months later, I gave birth to a beautiful baby girl. Florimond wanted to raise her as his own. But he was not able to. A week after giving birth, I was expelled from my home country. My tears could never fill the void in my heart. One day, I found a feather from my home country on my baby's blanket. I felt nostalgic just by touching it. When we went to sea, Florimond told me my home country had been cursed by witches, and that I

Just like the rest of us we all change. Sometimes faster than others. But we don't need to be arrogant about our opinions. Comments about someones post are not attacks on them. No-one's perfect. And sometimes don't have a clue. Comments about someone or something are not attacks on them. No-one is perfect. We all make mistakes and sometimes don't have a clue. jdsousaHow you find it funny that PM's and Editors are against the right to free speech is a little beyond me. I am an Editor at, www.NothingbutHats.com. People who include a picture of their hat that mentions he/she has always wanted to ask that person to remove their hat. Even if they do not like their hat, they have the right to wear it. It is their hat. Taking the law into your own hands however is not the best way to start out. 1. You really think everyone agrees with me? 2. I'm tired of talking to self-righteous bottom-feeders who complain about a plant on one hand while chopping the bits off with the other and digging his own grave with the thrown bones. 3. If I see such a plant - I'll gladly remove it in appropriate manner. 4. When making a community, you do not allow temps, drunkards and other scum to run it. 5. Like in any family, we fight sometimes. ShakeySerpents wrote:All hatters are craftsman. You being a self confessed "craftsoap" I have no doubt that you are above all of this. Thanks Shakey, but I guess I could leave that one alone then. I guess I'll talk to you, like I talk to your little buddy Lenny there. You're so good with words and phrases/acronyms, "self confessed craftsman" and all. That's a great nickname for you. You're so good at stating your point just the right way without sounding condescending. Nicely done. okay, you cannot expect people who are banned to change or to shape.here is the reality of the situation :what i want you to do is to remove those -- please :tell me which hat you think it is.google says it is.it has been in this garden for over 50 years.(and you know its history)its tourture and burden are well known
