Field of the Invention This invention relates to a training apparatus and more particularly to an apparatus for teaching a person to properly position his or her body while leaning forward and extending the arms and also teaching a person to lean backward and extend the arms. 2. Description of the Prior Art According to the prior art, it has been known to provide a harness comprised of an upper torso portion, a lower torso portion, and a pair of shoulder straps which connect the upper torso portion to the lower torso portion. The upper torso portion is also attached to the lower torso portion by a pair of shoulder straps. These harnesses are effective in helping a person to develop physical skills. However, the prior art harnesses do not teach how a person may learn to position his or her body while leaning forward and extending the arms and also while leaning backward and extending the arms. Furthermore, the prior art training devices do not teach a person how to lean backward while pulling his or her body toward a horizontal position at the shoulders. Accordingly, a need remains for an apparatus in order to overcome the above-noted shortcomings. The present invention satisfies such a need by providing an apparatus that is convenient and easy to use, lightweight yet durable in design, versatile in its application, and conveniently and efficiently teaches a person to position his or her body while leaning forward and extending the arms and also while leaning backward and extending the arms.Istanbul will appoint a new conciliation commission following the fatal shooting of 45-year-old Arif Soylu, a Muslim security guard who was shot dead by a gang of mostly Kurdish youths in an attack blamed on the outlawed Kurdistan Workers Party. Turkey's state-run Anadolu Agency reported on Wednesday that the Istanbul governor, Huseyin Avni Mutlu, has ordered a 15-member commission to be formed to try to resolve the dispute. The news comes hours after Mutlu told
